South Cove Manor at Quincy Point Hosts Annual Meeting “Forging Our Future” House Ways and Means Chair Aaron Michlewitz Featured Guest Speaker

South Cove Manor at Quincy Point, a non-profit rehabilitation and care community, held its Annual Meeting and Dinner “Forging Our Future” on Tuesday, May 21, 2019 at China Pearl Restaurant, 237 Quincy Avenue, Quincy.

Board Chair Richard Lui opened the meeting stating, “Our meeting theme ‘Forging Our Future’ speaks to both our focus and our accomplishments of the last year. We have strong leadership, highly effective management and clinical teams, and a detailed plan for continuing to build our organization’s capacity.”

Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch followed with welcoming remarks and State Representative Tackey Chan, 2nd Norfolk district, introduced the featured Guest Speaker, Aaron Michlewitz, State Representative, 3rd Suffolk district, and Chair of the House Ways and Means Committee. President and C.E.O. Bill Graves thanked Chairman Michlewitz and Representative Tackey Chan for their support of quality care for frail and vulnerable older adults.

In addition to remarks by Chairman Michlewitz, highlights of the meeting included the Schlichte Learning Center/South Cove Manor Nursing Facilities Foundation Scholarships to support employees’ professional growth and advanced training. Scholarships were awarded to Kevin Liaw, L.P.N., Quoc Thang, I.T. manager, and Shirley Van R.N., and recognition was given to Oi Lai Li, Yan Zhu Liu, and Lang Rong Mei for achieving ServSafe certification in food safety, a program supported by the scholarship program.

Ting/Mugar Outstanding Leadership Awards were presented to Oi Lai Li, Yu Xiu Chen, Yan Zhu Liu, Yan Hua He, Bi Yu Liu and Jie Yun Wu for demonstrating leadership that advances personalized care and inspires excellence and teamwork.

Founded in Boston in 1985, South Cove Manor moved in 2014 to a new and expanded state-of-the-art campus at 288 Washington Street in Quincy. The new campus significantly expanded South Cove’s rehabilitation capacity and created a series of small resident communities for elders.

South Cove Manor at Quincy Point is a non-profit organization and multicultural community and its specialty is providing short term rehabilitation services to elders after a hospitalization or illness. South Cove Manor has consistently achieved a 5 Star rating from the Centers of Medicare and Medicaid Services, the nation’s highest quality accolade for senior care, and been named as one of the country’s top nursing centers year after year by US News & World Report. www.southcovemanor.org.
